An Experience Worth Remembering. Col. Tom Rodman as a Boy.

The following which we take from the Georgetownian, a college journal, is commended to the young people of our city as an example of what patient endurance and determination will accomplish:
"I never went to school a day after I was fourteen, though there never was a poor boy who wanted to go worse. I was bound out for four years. The first year I got fifty dollars; the salary increased each year until it reached one hundred and fifty the last year.
"There never was a slave more faithful to his master than I was to my boss. I studied his interests as carefully as if it had been my own business. When my time was nearly out my boss said: 'Tom, your time is nearly up.' I said 'yes, but I want to make up all lost time. I have lost a few days from sickness and I have been fishing several times;' but he wouldn't hear to it. He said: 'Tom, do you want to live with me again?' I said: 'Yes sir, if you will let me.' He told me my salary should be $400. I almost fainted. I jumped out of the store and ran home to tell mother. My hair was standing on end. I was out of breath when I rushed into mother's room and told her the good news. I would laugh awhile and then cry, and mother cried too. I had one of the best mothers a boy ever had. When she was old she said, 'Tom never disobeyed me nor even spoke an unkind word to me in all his life.' My brother I prize those words more than anything that was ever said to me. I believe God has blessed me all my life because I honored my mother according to his to His word—my father died when I was very young. My mother used to tell me she could live better, but she had made up her mind not to go in debt.

"When I went to school I took my bucket off behind the school-house to eat my dinner. I knew there was nothing in it but corn bread and side meat. One day a boy followed me, looked into my bucket and laughed at my poor grub. I couldn't keep from giving him a slap in the face. I said in my heart I will live to see the day when I am king by the side of you. That fellow died a pauper.
"I tell you, brother, I know what hard knocks are and it was all the best for me. A boy has no need of being discouraged in this country. I don't care how poor he is. If he is honest and faithful he will get there sure."

These are the words of Col. Tom Rodman, the President of the grand old Farmers Bank of Kentucky, as I sat in his office at Frankfort last summer. I wished that my boys could hear him. I wrote the words down from memory for them and others who might profit by them.

Just Waked Up.

The "Old Man of the Call" seems to be somewhat of a Rip Van Winkle. In his Monday's edition he makes mention of the fact that the guards at the Penitentiary had donned their new gray uniforms on Sunday, and then adds:

"We have always believed that the officials of the institution should be uniformed, the one great reason is that it commands the respect of even a criminal as hardened as some of the convicts serving terms at the above institution."

It may not be deemed impertinent for us to remind him that the guards have been wearing uniforms for some eight or ten years, and the only difference is that the former guards wore blue uniforms.

A New Idea.

The patent cap over the catch-basin, on St. Clair street, in front of the Baptist Church, is novel if not unique, and has the merit of being inexpensive if not ornamental. Before the reconstruction of the streets was begun the ROUNDABOUT suggested that the inlets to sewers be enlarged, and from the way things have to be torn up at the south end of St. Clair when it rains hard, it seems that we were right.

What Says He?

Now that the race for the nomination for Representative from this county in the next Legislature seems to be made up, what says the Woodcock?

Three Doctors in Consultation.

From Benjamin Franklin.

"When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place; what experience tells you is best to be chosen in the second place; what reason (i. e., Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place. But if you can get Dr. Inclination, Dr. Experience and Dr. Reason to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken."

When you have a bad cold Dr. Inclination would recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is pleasant and safe to take. Dr. Experience would recommend it because it never fails to effect a speedy and permanent cure. Dr. Reason would recommend it because it is prepared on scientific principles, and acts on nature's plan in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions and restoring the system to a natural and healthy condition. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has the largest sale of any salve in the world. This fact and its merit has led dishonest people to attempt to counterfeit it. Look out for the man who attempts to deceive you when you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the great pile cure. Tyler & Hemphill.
